Poppop I still can't believe you're really gone it doesn't feel real and it doesn't feel fair. I begged God to help you get better to give you more time not to take you away not like this. I didn't want to say goodbye I wasn't ready I never would've been. Seeing you like that laying there cold and lifeless already gone it broke something in me that I don't think will ever heal. I can't get that image out of my head and I can't stop thinking about how I should've come yesterday how maybe if I did I could've told you I love you one more time or held your hand or just been next to you so you didn't feel alone and now I have to live with that and it hurts so bad. I remember when you took me and Mom to the 9/11 museum and how proud you were to teach us things and be with us and how safe I felt just being near you. I wish I could go back to that day and freeze it forever because I didn't know back then how little time we really had. You always joked about having partys with ponys and clowns while i was at school. So i hope gramma thru you one in heaven like some goofy little coming home party and I hope you got exactly that. I hope you're up there smiling and reunited with Gramma i know how much you have missed her, i do too. I hope your heart finally feels full again. You were so much more than just my Popop you were one of my safest places and I'll love you forever I'll never forget you I'll never stop missing you not for a second not for the rest of my life. I wish i got to say my last goodbye and "i love you," but i didn't that hurts me, but i love you so much. Rest easy, popop.
