“ Sending condolences and prayers to you. Whenever we ran into Travis he was always the respectful gentleman. He shared about his own life and inquired about ours. Travis always spoke with a level head and had good goals. When we spoke Travis always mentioned his desire and goal to work in law enforcement wanting to serve our community and keep it safe, a noble goal. I am sorry for this heartbreaking loss. “ I haven't seen Travis in years, but we talked almost every day. He's truly been though so much, always came out on top, and was such a crazy, amazing person. He would take the shirt off his back for absolutely anyone. It's such a tragic loss for everyone.
Love you Travis, you will never be forgotten.

“ I remember just sitting on the porch with you, smoking way too many cigarettes. Talking, trying to understand each other. You hung up all of those rope lights around the deck. It was so beautiful at night. They are still there.
You always had such creative ideas that you brought to life. Like for one of Adalyn's birthdays, you tried making the sprinkler system for the kids. You spent a long time on that thing until you got it just how you wanted it.
And I remember you trying to take down a paper wasp nest by throwing a machete at it. You ended up throwing the machete and it landed on the roof of the car garage. It was there for so many years after.
All of the things that you wrote me, each word heartfelt. Pages upon pages of your feelings written down. You were the most thoughtful man.
I'm going to miss you
